THE NUMBER OF NEGROES OF THE WANDERER.

From the New York Herald, Dec. 15.

We are authorized to state, that the story about the yacta Wanderer bringing three hundred eleves to this country is simply ridiculous, from the fact that she could not possibly accommodate more than half that number. The truth of the matter, as we are informed is, that she from the fact that she could not possibly accommodate more than half that number. The truth of the matter, as we are informed, is, that she does not not of their nearly of the matter, as we are informed, is, that she had on board but sighty negroes, who were selected on account of their health, vigor, size and strength; that they were treated with the utmost care on the voyage, and finally landed in good condition at some point between Florida and Georgia, where they readily brought seven hundred foliars each—making an aggregate of fity-rix thousand deliars. Sho was in the act of going up a pair of steps, when, as is supposed, by her mother who was occupied noar by, her foot slipped, precipitating her head first into a crock standing at the bottom of the steps. This breaking, a sharp angle entered the neck under the ear, severing the jugular vein, and causing almost instant death. This peculiar and distressing occurrence must may a nost savera efficiency. ing occurrence must prove a most severe afflic on to the bereaved parents; and especially a tion to the bereaved parents; and especially as she was a very bright, intelligent child. Our correspondent informs us, and it may not be unworthy of record, that her last words before the accident, were those of the song, "I want to go to Jeens," which she had just finished einging when she fell. Lite does indeed hang by a thread.

-Baraboo Republic, Dec. 16. Election of Governor of South Carolina.

The Legislature yesterday elected, on joint ballot, Col. William H. Gist, of Union District, Governor of South Carolina for the term of two years. Col. Gist was for many years a member of the Senste, and in 1848 was Lieut. Governor, during the term of Col. Sestrook. We believe that he never qualified as Lieut. Governor, but continued in his Senatorial seat, where he served for several years subsequently. Coli Gist Is very widely known throughout the State as a man of high honor and character.—Charleston Mercury, Dec. 30.

Washington, Dec. 17.

A difficulty occurred between Coogressmen English and Montgomery, on Pennsylvania Avenue, this moraing. They happened to meet for the first time this session, when Mr. English, extending his hand, said, "how are you, Mr. Mortgomery?" Mr. Montgomery withheld his own hand and uttered en insulting expression some thing like "I don't speak to puppies," where upon Mr. English struck him a severe thow over the head, breaking his came to pleases and knockupon Mr. English virtick him a zerore blow over the head, breaking his cane to pieces and knock-ing Mr. Montgomery into the gutter, but not en-tirely down, and Mr. Montgomery, rising, hurled a brick at Mr. English, stitking him on the boot, but doing him no tripury. Mr. English estates to his friends that he was entirely unarmed and was unaware that Mr. Montgomery had any ill will towards him up to the time of the recontre. Mr. Montgomery, in strength, is superior to Mr. Eng-lish. iish.

MONDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 20.

The Assumption Scheme--What is it? The News of Seturday again makes complaint that "the opponents of assumption do not meet the proposition laid down by the friends of that measure." The friends of the measure have put forward one scheme, which was speedily dissec-ted by the press, condemned by the public and thereupon discarded by its putative authors .-Their second plan has not yet been made public, though the Committee has been in labor with it these two, or three weeks. It will be time enough to charge the opponents of assumption with declining to meet the issue, when the friends of the measure lay it before the public in black and white.

The argument in favor of the principle of assumption is thus stated by the News :

The indebtedness, which the State is asked to assume, is not of that kind, which is usually denominated private, because it was incurred to the public good. This cannot be denied. These ralloads are public improvements. the public good. Into cannot be defined. These railroads are public improvements, and there is acarcely a State in the Union, which has not aided in the construction of such improvements.— The argument, that they are not, if good for any-

The argument that they are, applies to a great many private enterprises as well as to Rati Roads. Plank Roads, Saw-Mills, Fouring Mills, Hotels and Newspapers for instance, are all private enterprises, yet they are all "for the public good," and the debts incurred in their creation, according to the "Assumption" logic, ought therefore to be shouldered by the State.

But, urges the News, "the State is not asked to assume this indebtedness for the purpose of to assume this indebtedness for the purpose of duction of principal or reduction of interest, and an extension of time." Here is just the question. Once break down the Constitutional barrier against a great State debt and who can sav rery embarrassments, which now surround the Rail Roads? Or who will undertake to predict, that if the barrier is thrown down, the State will not, in a few years, be brought to the same coater, in a few years, be brought to the same coater. dition from which the Rail Roads are now trying to escape? Finally, if the State is to be called apon "for the public good," to assume the Rail Road debts, why is not the reason equally strong failure. Above all, too, its weekness was shown Pakir, Nov. 25, 1858. Yesterday morning, between 9 and 10 o'clock. Lwas one of a small group of men who clostered ound the doors of the entrance of the Palace of Justice in order to be present at the thial of M. de Montalembert. At 11 o'clock we were admitted, and a few minutes after 12 o'clock the married daughter.

The first proceeding of any interset was the interrogetory of the accused persons, and I may say, of the principal one of the two; for the few words addressed to the aditor of the Corresponding dent were of small consequence. M. de Monta-embert was sealed by the side of M. Berryer, and of secto bim was the Duc de Bregije, who had requested that position, and Odlion Barrot had requested that portion, and Odllon Barrot—the extremes, about, of monarchical parliamentarism in France. Of course your limits will not admit of my detailing for you minutely this most anxious, asking, which lasted from 12 o'clock to 84 to the evening. All I can attempt must, of course, be to reproduce the principal features of the audience, and its general aspect. You can conceive nothing more admirable than the attitude of M. de Montelemb 4. during his interrogatory. It was quiciness and calminess itself, with that touch of irony that is so peculiar to him, and with a studied politoness to the bonch that evi-dently put his questioners into the most isup-portable embarrassment. Those who remember him at the Chamber of Peers found him whole and entire yesterday at the Police Correctionand entire yesterday at this Police Correctionneife.

In those cases, two thing are to be avoided:
the wish to escape a penalty, which superinduces weakness, and shows you humble before his judges the man who has been bold, pen in hand; and the wish for totoriety, which swells a small culprit into a would be martyr, and puts before you as inevitable theatrical horo. In nine cases out of ten you have the latter. M. de Monat! embert, I need scarcely say, was ucither one nor the ather. He with quiet determination held to all he had said, but did so without the slightest "fuss"—did so just as an English gentleman would have cone. In answer to one question put, he distinctly said: "Yes, I do estrem the political institutions of England proferable to thore by which Fence is at precent ruled;" and on another occasion he replied: ruled:" and on another occasion he replied:-

paying it, but for the purpose of effecting a rewill take it oxclusively, if you desire it?

This interrogatory was followed by the speech of the Procurent Imperiale, than which a more common place of cratory it has never been my fortune to hear. Of cause he took the side of when, or where the debt-creating, or the debt-assuming policy will stop? Who does not see that, but for this Constitutional inhibition, the Rail Road manis, the rage for speculation and the reckless abuse of credit of the last five years, would have plunged the state into the years, would be plunged the state into the formulation of the constitution of the consti work is an impious one." work is an improve one."

Now, I am bound to say this in guiffuence of language did not produce the effect that was an included; upon the whole, the accusation was a for its assuming the debts of all corporations, by the very circumstance that, instead of fellowassociations and individuals, whose enterprises, though of a private nature, redound, more or less, to the public advintage?

The Moviera Care and the temperature of the cap-trap denunciation of M. do Mouthlem bert and man of "impatrictic" mind. This, however, furnished Bertyer with one of his bappings. The Mortera Case and the Hishop of Runnished Berryer with one of his happiest rijoinders. Efter the opening of his "plaidefrie," he turned round upon the unlucky Procurent Catholic Bishop of Buenos Ayres, appears under the above caption. In the editorial columns of that paper, for which I hold the Editor therefor repossible.

Such is the first paragraph of a long communication in the News of Saurday, algued "A Catholic," but written undoubtedly by a designing recter and aim of the writer, that he represents the article in the Sentined as editorial and 'holds the editor thereof responsible," when he knew that it was a commanication, that it was published as such, and that no editor holds himself responsible for the opinions of his correspondents of the Sentined, as least always sprak for themselves, and the editor for himself. Of course, an article commencing as does the one in the News, with a deliberate fulser when the one of the three end, and hereafter calls for no further notice at our hands hood, pursues the same course to the end, and hereafter call for no further notice at our hands Our correspondent "J" is welcome, however, to serwer it if he likes.

Mr. Marphy in Paris: Progress of the Chess Campaign—Mr. Morphy and his Antogenists.

PARTS, Nov. 21, 1853.

Mr. Morphy is not going home so soon as announced in the New York journals. He will spend the winter in Paris. Professor Andersen, of Breslau, will arrive here from the 20th to the M. de Montatemoer.

admitted, and a few minutes after 12 o'clook the proceedings of the court began The chamber is extremely small, holds about 150 people easily, and about 200 hundred closely packed. I should think we were sliegether, over 200. I counted conly ten ladies in the trial-chamber, including Madama de Montalembers and her young unmaried daughter.

MI. Morphy is a decrease, he will arrive here from the 20th to the 2th of December, and then the great match between him and Morphy will take places. Nothing has been beard from M. Heyldebrandt, and at present Mr. Morphy has no other great match in anticipation but that with the distinguished at present Mr. Morphy has no other great match in anticipation but that with the distinguished Prussian Professor. As both the gentlemen in this case are "unprofessional players," they will not stake any money; but their thends will no doubt bet largely. M. Herwitz feels core over his defent, and to all the attempts of Mr. Morphy's theods to Induce him to try anoth: match he offers the excuse rat Mr. Morphy had not treated him well. But this excuse is totally unfounded, and is based upon a letter written by Mr. M. to the editor of the Mond: Hustic (in which Harwitz edits the chess correr) correcting some of the statements of Harwitz in regard to their great match. Morphy says that Harwitz has more points of excellence in his game than any mache has ever met, and he would only be too well pleused to meet bim would only be too well pleased to meet him again. He does not expect to meet in M. An-dersen as difficult an adversary of M. Har witz, dersen as difficult an advariary as M. Har witz, but this remains to be proved.

M. Andersen is, it is said, "playing up," and intends making a tramendous rush on the American boy. But if his hiends with, they can have millions of money staked, with edds, in his favor. Mr. Staucton, by his last letter, and by his garbled publication of Mr. Morphy's latter, has lost every friend he has here, and I learn nearly all his friends in England as well. His course has been neither gentlamanly nor honorable, and among the many friends Mr. Morphy has made in France, not one would new consent to see him play with Mr. Staunton on any terms, In the meantiane Morphy continues to play nearly every day at the Cale de la Regence, against all comers, giving odds to the weak, and showing his billiant points to the strong.—Correspondence of the N. Y. Times.

The New Rell of Wasiminster. The great bell was only tried resterday, and not with the hammer, but with the clapper. The all was clear about the monster, and this fact be-ing satisfactorily ascertained, some men were set ing satisfactorily ascertained, some men were set to work to pull down the tarpaulings which hung round the open arches of the beil-chamber to protect the workmen from the keen wind, but which on the occasion would have kept in the sound sufficiently to half deafen all in the tower. It was impossible, however to remore a wooden boarding on the north side, or the temporary roof over the boll, so that the trial was made under certain disadvantages. The rope of the clapper was then passed down to the clock-chamber, where Mr. Dennison, setting to work with a will, made the Dennison, setting to work with a will, made the bell speak in tones not likely to be forgotten soon by those who heard them in the belfry. The first stroke was slight, but afterwards, it came real safer was light, but intervalue, it came pear safer peal, in a tremendous volume of sound, that was actually painful. It seemed to swell and grow upon the air with a vibracion that thilled every bone in the listener's body with a painful jar, becoming louder and londer with each gigentic claug till one shrunk from the awful reverberto chang till one shrunk from the awful reverber-ations as from something tangible and dangerous to most. Many went upon the balustrade out-side and chamber to avoid the waves of sound that seemed eddying round the tower; but the escape was only a partial relief, the great dia soeming almost to penetrate the stone work of the battlements, and jar the very place in which one stood.

The first strokes seemed to create an immense The first strokes scened to create an immeuse excitement in the streets below, and upturned faces dotted all over the Palace yard, amid the rows of cabs, that looked as little as perambulators, with a good sprinkling of loungers, who came out from Westminster Hall, at once showed the interest that was riken in the great bell's making speech. After the first attempt by Mr. Deaulson, the bell was struck slower but with greater force by two or three workman, and this reater force by two or three workmen, and this dicited the whole of its tremendous tones to the greatest extent, till the sound was something almost awful, floating about the tower and slowly dying arway like the note of a soft trumpet, till it sunk to a deep, rich hum, that hung about the bell long after the stroke had ceased. In the Palace yard, or still better, in the Park, the harshness and uproar of the noise wore modulated to a heavy, deep and rather melanchely sound, not less solemn than those of St. Paul's, but infinitely fuller and grander. These experiments were not made with a view of ascertaining either the fitness or the tone of the bell.—London Times,

WIEKLY MARKET REVIEW.

The near approach of Orisimas times gives a lively loss to business, more especially the relail departments of trade, and our merchants are generally doing a very good buoy ant feeling in all kinds of products throughout the week. The receipts of pearly all articles show a slight increase over last week, and as will be observed our quotations also exhibit an improvement. In prices of grain There has been considerable firmness, in wheat, and the market closes of an advance of la2c on No. 1 spring and 2.5c on extra club. with a brisk demand for the latter, Flour remains as reported last week, with a little firmer feeling amongst holders, if anything. Oats came up steadily multi Friday, having reached 45a45c, when they dropped 2x8c, the market closing rather heavy at 49a42c, Corn and rye are a shade higher, while barley remains anchanged. Fotatoes are becoming quite scarce, and special series will receip bring firease. Eggs are also scarce, and will bring 11a18c in bils. Butter is a skade lower, although receipts are considerably below last lower, although receipts and second week's. The supply of poultry is not so large, or good cts of either chickens, turkeys, or goose, self

Hope and how wenducis have declined only materials since the date of our last review both here and at the East. Dressed hogs have declined from 50 to 660 on the hundred pounds, as withbe seen by a statement of the comparative prices:

cures would far exceed their estimates, they became un retrogation in prices. When the panie subsided it was to do to do that there was not much reason for alaim after the present writing the tearket begins to show the signs of recuperation. The receives of how to the

In the money market, while Ourreacy is not over and above plenty, there is enough money for all strictly legit-imate business transactions, and the Banks are discount imate business transactions, and the passac are discounting for their customers to a liberal extent at 10 per cent There is not much doing in outside circles and rates, as many, range from 1 % to 8 per cent a month. Exchange is in good supply and selling at 1 per cent premium, and Gold sells at 1all & per cent. Gold sells at latte per cent.

There has been one foreign arrival since our last, re porting flour heavy and wheat a shade lower in the Liv erpool market.

The principal articles received by Lake at this port during the past season of navigation, compute as follow with last year's imports: | Min | Last year's imports: | 1857 | 1858 | Increase | Decrease | 1857 | 1858 | Increase | Decrease | 1857 | 1858 | Increase | Decrease | 1857 | 1858 | Increase | 1858 | Inc

It will be observed that in every article of importance o is a large falling off sinco last year in our imports. This is an evidence of the rigid aconomy which our per the interior particularly, and it augurs well for the future. Our exports show a satisfactory increase, as the following comparison of the shipments of wheat and

We give below the imports and exports from this porturing the past sesson of navigation, as entered upon the Gustom House books. In regard to the imports it is proper that we should say that the figures opposite many of the articles are very from being the correct amount of such articles received, owing to the practice of reporting whole cargoes, consisting of all manner of goods, imports.
